I. INTRODUCTION

In today's rapidly evolving era, learning foreign languages is crucial. Learning foreign languages is a means of communication between people. It can be said that there are thousands of different languages on our planet and of course there are international languages today for people to understand each other and international languages are languages where people can understand and communicate with each other. Today, people are learning another foreign language in addition to their mother tongue and face various obstacles in the process of learning. With the development of modern technology, some of the barriers faced by language learners are greatly alleviated. Today, the development of trade, economics, politics and sports, and the establishment of good relations with many other countries are in many ways related to the study of foreign languages today. For similar reasons, many people learn foreign languages. Today, the demand and desire to learn foreign languagesis growing, and it can be said that in the process of learning a foreign language, many young people want to go abroad and study or work there. Most people face different challenges. The growing demand for learning foreign languages today is a clear example of this. Due to this, the problems of learning foreign languages are very important, and the process of learning a language in most people is different. Unfortunately, there is no general or ideal method of learning foreign languages today. Everyone has different types of methods and techniques in learning foreign languages We can say that in some people the process of learning a language seems very difficult and tedious in memorizing grammar and new words. But grammar and new words can be learned in interesting ways in a variety of ways. It would be expedient for them to create an atmosphere for themselves. How can they create this process? First of all, 2 or 3 times a week to go to an additional tutor in the same subject, or some students in the process of learning the same language in lyceums, colleges, institutes or universities, not only during that lesson. For example, the development of the Internet today is the same for most people, especially for language learners. Today, books written in a foreign language can be easily found and read on the Internet or in bookstores, and in the process they can easily use words they do not know through a dictionary. This method is more effective than just memorizing a dictionary and helps people to memorize new words, and it is also useful to read those books, and the new words that are searched throughout the work do not make people very bored, either by reading a book and looking for words in it. not too boring. In addition, people may have different problems in pronouncing and reading the foreign languages they are learning, and listening to the BBC on different topics and watching movies on different topics can also help people to hear and pronounce fluently in that language. For example, when people choose a movie and watch it once or twice, they focus on the events that take place in it. It is natural for the characters to behave during the film because it is difficult to understand a movie in a foreign language. and in the process of watching more, they gradually begin to understand the film. And many movies gradually increase people's attention to the process of speaking, and the viewer begins to pay attention to the words and pronunciation of the characters in the film, and in this process his hearing quality begins to improve. We can see this process not only in movies but also in songs. Many foreign music makes it easier for us to learn foreign languages in the first place. By listening to many foreign songs, people's hearing quality gradually improves. In this process, of course, the role of the Internet is much better. we can find any music we want today. We can even search for its lyrics on the internet and through the text we can sing and memorize the song. And through the text of that song, people can easily search for words they don't know through a dictionary, and that's the process. It is also quite useful for people.

In addition, reading many different books in a foreign language, listening to the BBC and news on various topics, and watching music and movies in the same foreign language will help language learners to learn very quickly and efficiently. In addition, books, movies, music, and the BBC and News in foreign languages are also a great help for people to learn about the history, culture and traditions of the countries they are studying based on. In addition, talking to real native speakers when learning a foreign language also helps people to learn the language quickly and efficiently. Creating a good environment for the foreign language being studied will speed up this process. Of course, many people feel the need to learn foreign languages, of course, in many areas it is very difficult to imagine without foreign languages. By learning foreign languages, many people are able to gain experience in many fields, such as science, art, sports and other fields. There are many opportunities to learn foreign languages and go abroad for example. They have gained a lot of knowledge and experience through their studies and professions there. As mentioned above, knowledge of foreign languages is becoming a requirement of the times. for reasons such as they are learning foreign languages. Learning foreign languages is very important today Many people today want to know more information, especially people living in distant lands and their interest in learning about their way of life and the languages they speak is growing day by day. different methods and ways are also beginning to evolve considerably. People are learning foreign languages online, even at home. Different types of videos and tutorials are especially useful for language learners. In fact, learning a new language requires a lot of hard work and patience. For example, Vitaly Melnikov, a Russian polyglot knows 103 different languages and can write poems in them. They also do some silly things, for example speaking loudly, they spend a lot of time talking to themselves to practice in a foreign language, for reading, lestening, speaking and writing.

II. CONCLUSION

In conclusion when people only speak English they can communicate with over 400 million other people and learning a foreign language helps them know more about the world. As long as people feel need to communicate, there will be a place for foreign languages. We should keep in mind and learn foreign languages to understand other people better.
